If there's no employment generation, there's no opportunity coming in. It will have no meaning.

The real estate sector is already doing well, so let's just hope it gets higher to 5-7% of GDP.

What can be done to instil a sense of confidence on the part of the taxpayers, who are the ones who pay the taxes?

We're here to mention that the government is considering making changes to RERA, which is the Registration of Real Estate Act.

There's a greater confidence in the real estate sector among the taxpayers because of RERA.

The government has also announced measures to boost the real estate sector.

There are prospects for the future, and we're optimistic about the sector's growth.

What are your expectations for the near future?

President of the chamber, Mr. Nganam Hiranandani, has said that the government should focus on the real estate sector, which has the potential to generate employment and拉动经济.

The government should take measures to attract foreign investors, who are currently wary of investing in India due to the uncertainty surrounding the market.

The government has announced several measures to support the real estate sector, including tax breaks and incentives for developers.

The government has also announced an interest rate cut, which is expected to boost the housing market.

The government needs to address the issue of foreclosed properties and provide solutions to address the problems facing these properties.

The government is also considering introducing new policies to attract foreign investors and boost economic growth.

In conclusion, the government needs to take a proactive approach to address the challenges facing the real estate sector and the economy as a whole.
