The government has to garner resources and give a boost to the economy by increasing its investments.

Impact on the economy

The recent decline in sentiment towards the manufacturing sector suggests that the government needs to take urgent measures to boost the economy. The sector has been hit hard by the ongoing trade war between the US and China, which has led to a decline in exports and a rise in imports.

The government needs to come up with a comprehensive plan to support the manufacturing sector. This could include measures such as tax incentives for companies that invest in the sector, as well as measures to reduce the cost of doing business. The government should also work to improve the Ease of Doing Business ranking for India, which is currently 100th in the world.

Impact on exports

The decline in sentiment towards the manufacturing sector has also had a negative impact on exports. The government needs to work with other countries to reduce tariffs and improve access to markets. This could include measures such as negotiating trade agreements that reduce tariffs and improve market access.

Impact on investments

The government needs to work to attract investment into the manufacturing sector. This could include measures such as tax incentives for companies that invest in the sector, as well as measures to improve the Ease of Doing Business ranking for India.
