Expectations running high on Trump's visit: India Inc

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, 16 February

India Inc expects tangible outcomes from US President Donald Trump's maiden visit to the world's fifth largest economy later this month, including a bilateral "mini" trade deal and higher investment commitments from American companies, industry groups said on Sunday.

The two countries are negotiating a trade package to iron out certain issues and promote two-way commerce. India is demanding exemption from high duties imposed by the US on certain steel and aluminium products, resumption of export benefits to certain domestic products, and greater market access for its products from sectors like agriculture, automobile, auto components and engineering. The US wants greater market access for its farm and manufacturing products, dairy items and medical devices, data localisation, and cut on import duties on some information and communication technology products.

"As Indian industry enhances its investment and job creation in the US, we expect an interaction of President Trump with leading Indian companies operating in the US," Confederation of Indian Industry Director General Chandrajit Banerjee said.

"Trade negotiators from India and the US have been working hard to add value to the bilateral economic engagement, leveraging on their mutual advantages. The two leaders would give a decisive lift to bilateral ties," Assocham Secretary General Deepak Sood said.

Industry has high expectation from Trump’s India visit

PRESSTURE OF INDIA
NEW DELHI, 18 FEBRUARY

Corporate India expects tangible outcomes from US President Donald Trump’s maiden visit to the world’s fifth largest economy later this month, including a bilateral "mini" trade deal and higher investment commitments from American companies, industry groups said today. The two countries are negotiating a trade package to iron out certain issues and promote two-way commerce. India is demanding exemption from high duties imposed by the US on certain steel and aluminium products, resumption of export benefits to certain domestic products under the Generalised System of Preferences, and greater market access for its products from sectors like agriculture, automobile, auto components and engineering.

On the other hand, the US wants greater market access for its farm and manufacturing products, dairy items and medical devices, data localisation, and cut on import duties on some information and communication technology (ICT) products. The US has also raised concerns over high trade deficit with India.

"Expectations remain high on achieving a bilateral "mini" trade deal, which hopefully lays the foundation for a more comprehensive economic partnership. As Indian industry enhances its investment and job creation in the US, we expect an interaction of President Trump with leading Indian companies operating in the US," Confederation of Indian Industry (CII) director-general Chandrakirti Banerjee said.

"Trade negotiators from India and the US have been working hard to add value to the bilateral economic engagement, leveraging on their mutual advantages. As Prime Minister Narendra Modi hosts Mr Trump to a national reception, the two leaders would give a decisive lift to bilateral ties," ASSOCHAM secretary-general Deepak Sood said. Mr Trump is slated to travel to India on 24 and 25 February. According to sources, he will meet the country’s top business leaders here on 25 February in a bid to push for deeper trade and business ties.
